Car park at the church. Take the Alba direction, going down towards the N102 to Charnier. Climb up again to the junction at

FONT NEGRE

DIRECTION: ALBA

Passing through "Serre Leroux" (altitude 400m), continue towards Alba by going down beside the small pond of Font Nègre

Steady climb through the marlstones, then the Malavas plain up to

BOURBOULET

DIRECTION: ALBA

You will walk across a prairie invaded with a multitude of blue flowers in the spring up to

LA CROIX DE JULIAU

DIRECTION: SUMMIT OF LA CROIX JULIAU

Allow one hour out and back from Bourboulet to reach the summit of La Croix de Juliau (altitude 553m). Tradition has it that this toponym owes its origin to the passing of Julius Caesar. The etymology of Juliau does indeed point to the name or forename Julius, but really has no connection with Caesar!

Then take the St Jean le Centenier direction to reach

ARGENCE

DIRECTION: ST JEAN LE CENTENIER

by crossing the hamlet of Lablachère. Continue, passing through

THEOULE

The term théoule, from the Occitan teule : tile, means the place where tiles and pottery were fired.

Return to the village via the path in the direction of St Jean le Centenier.
